Job Training Incentive Program Director Honored by New Mexico IDEA

Las Cruces, NM - The New Mexico Economic Development Department's (NMEDD) Job Training Incentive Program Director (JTIP), Sara Haring, was recently honored for her outstanding economic development achievements by New Mexico IDEA. The award was presented at the organization's annual meeting in Las Cruces where they presented several achievement awards to individuals recognizing their stellar achievements in economic development.

"We are proud of Sara and the work that she does directing the Job Training Incentive Program which is a very important piece of our economic development efforts," said Economic Development Secretary Jon Barela. "Sara's work helps new and existing companies across the state expand their workforce."

Haring received the Ben Lujan Public Servant of the Year award recognizing her exceptional work in assisting the training needs of new and expanding companies in New Mexico. As one nominator wrote, "this person embodies the spirit of public service, and she does it with true professionalism, unbiased judgment and a strong desire to help the people of New Mexico".

Also of notable mention NMEDD's Economic Development Division director Therese Varela was elected to serve as New Mexico IDEA's president.

New Mexico IDEA promotes New Mexico's economic growth through focused advocacy of economic development issues, providing networking, professional development, education, and training opportunities for its members. For more information about the organization click here.
