The New Mexico Film Office Announces 11:55 El Paso Has Completed Production in New Mexico

SANTA FE, N.M. – The New Mexico Film Office announces a short film, 11:55 El Paso, produced by Agua Dulce Inc., has completed production in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

“We are seeing productions of all sizes being made in New Mexico and participate in our competitive incentive program. Several new up-and-coming directors and producers, such as Keith Jardine, are getting their first shot behind the camera here in New Mexico, and that is exciting,” said Amber Dodson, New Mexico Film Office Director.

11:55 El Paso is Keith Jardine’s (John Wick, Inherent Vice, Godless) directorial debut and produced by James Lloyd McKinney (Ashburn, More Than A Cowboy) and Lacie Mackey (Jurassic World, Mission Impossible).

“In these times, it’s still really difficult to get films going. New Mexico has been amazing in helping us tell our story, get the locals involved, and help get people back to work. I’m humbled by the work ethic and professionalism of our crew and we are all just so excited to bring this story to life,” says Jardine.

The production employed approximately 26 New Mexico crew members and 8 New Mexico cast members.

The production will star actors Keith Jardine (John Wick, Inherent Vice, Godless), Brendan Fehr (Roswell), Tait Fletcher (Jumanji, The Mandalorian), and Cowboy Cerrone (Ashburn, Spencer Confidential)

11:55 El Paso is the story of a man carrying a dangerous package for the mob. He attracts every hitman in Albuquerque.
