Online Tool Helps Businesses Connect with Funding EDD launches new Business Finance Finder Tool

SANTA FE, N.M. – The New Mexico Economic Development Department (EDD) has launched an online platform to make it easier for business owners to connect with financial institutions that can fund their projects, Economic Development Cabinet Secretary Alicia J. Keyes announced today.

The online tool, called the Business Finance Finder, can be used by both business owners and financial organizations. Business owners who are seeking financing can upload basic information about a project to be matched with local lenders or other local financial organizations. They can also use the filter feature to search for lenders directly. Additionally, financial organizations can use the tool to find filtered projects and offer funding.

Searching for capital can be daunting and many small business owners do not know where to begin. The challenges can be even more pronounced for rural businesses, women-owned businesses, and businesses owned by socially and economically disadvantaged persons.

“In order to have a healthy ecosystem for our businesses to thrive, we need a level playing field to access capital. This tool can help make important connections so New Mexican business owners can focus on running and growing their businesses,” Secretary Keyes said.

The Business Finance Finder was funded through a grant from the 2021 Economic Development Administration CARES Act. The federal funds were granted to EDD to create programs that mitigate barriers and increase access to capital for businesses. EDD staff worked with MStreetX to develop the Business Finance Finder.

EDD is inviting financial organizations and businesses to sign up at EDD.NewMexico.gov/BFF. The platform operates by using filters to help provide relevant matches for users. Businesses can choose to identify traits about their financing needs, so they are searchable by financial organizations.

EDD is hosting an information session to walk people through how to use the tool on June 22 at 9 a.m. Register at <https://bit.ly/3HqhH61>.
