N.M. Economic Development Partners with UNM Rainforest Innovations to Empower Underserved Entrepreneurs

SANTA FE, N.M. – The New Mexico Economic Development Department's Justice, Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Office (JEDI Office) and the UNM Rainforest Innovations New Mexico Tribal Entrepreneurship Enhancement Program (NMTEEP) have formalized a collaboration aimed at advancing underserved business owners and entrepreneurs throughout the state.

"The partnership between the JEDI Office and NMTEEP represents an opportunity to further the goals of both programs. By working together, we aim to empower underserved business owners and entrepreneurs, eliminate barriers to success, and promote equitable economic opportunities for all New Mexicans," EDD Deputy Secretary Jon Clark said.

This Memorandum of Understanding will catalyze joint efforts to organize events, workshops, and programs, as well as initiatives to enhance marketing and data sharing. Additionally, the partnership will emphasize financial literacy programs, and technical assistance tailored to the unique needs of underserved businesses and entrepreneurs.

"By joining forces, the JEDI Office and NMTEEP will create a more inclusive and supportive ecosystem for underserved entrepreneurs in New Mexico," Shani Harvie, Coordinator of the JEDI Office, said. "This partnership aligns perfectly with our vision of ensuring that all business owners, including indigenous entrepreneurs, and regardless of their background, have access to the resources and opportunities they need to thrive."

Cecilia Pacheco, Program Manager of NMTEEP, added, "UNM Rainforest Innovations is excited to collaborate with the JEDI Office in our shared mission of supporting entrepreneurs in tribal communities and those affected by coal mine closures. Together, we can make a meaningful impact on economic development and entrepreneurship in New Mexico."
